

MATT ATKINSON SPEAKS ON " THE VICKSBURG CAMPAIGN: BLITZKRIEG THROUGH MISSISSIPPI "

By Mark Trbovich

It is a tough act to follow legendary Ed Bearss in our 2010 schedule of speakers, but our June speaker, Matt Atkinson, is up to the task. Last July I joined him on a van tour of the Battle of 1st Manassas. He brings knowledge and passion to his audience.

Matt is employed by Gettysburg National Military Park as a park ranger, (where civil war touring is king). He hails from Houston, Mississippi. (Grierson's Raid came through his town.) Matt grew up in Mississippi loving to learn about the Civil War. When his parents took him to local battlefields such as Vicksburg and Shiloh, Matt always asked, "Dad, did we win here?" and Dad always responded, "No, not here." At age seven, Matt and his parents made a trip to Washington, D. C. On the way, they stopped at the Manassas Battlefield. Finally! A victory! Welcome back to Manassas, Matt!

Matt attended Ole Miss and graduated with a bachelor of business administration and bachelor of arts in history. He is currently pursuing a master of arts in history at the University of Louisiana at Monroe. His thesis is on the Battle of Chickasaw Bayou.

Matt has also published a manuscript entitled Drennan's Letter by a Confederate staff officer. William Drennan witnessed many important events during the campaign and siege of Vicksburg. At the Battle of Champion Hill, Drennan observed an argument between William W. Loring and John C. Pemberton that later led to much controversy. In May, as the siege began, Drennan began a letter to his wife that eventually totaled ninety pages and chronicled all that happened during the siege. Matt will have copies of Drennan's Letter available for purchase ($8) after the program. He currently resides in Gettysburg, Pennsylvania, with his wife Angela and twenty-month old son Benjamin Lee.

Matt's talk promises to be an "entertaining" evening so don't miss it!

The President's Column By Mark Trbovich

We anticipated a large turnout for Ed Bearss' presentation on the Battle of Chancellorsville at our round table on May 13th. Boy, were we correct! Another packed house for the 19th anniversary of the founding of the BRCWRT. I want to thank everyone who helped to make it a very special evening for all! The refreshments were excellent. Thanks Deanna Bailey and Sandy Isasiello, for setting up and serving refreshments.

We were blessed to hear Ed discuss the battle plan and action at the Battle of Chancellorsville. I know everyone left with much more knowledge about it than when they arrived. We will be touring the battlefield on June 26. See Page 4 of the Stone Wall for more details. Ed's new book about Vicksburg and Gettysburg, a complement to his first book with National Geographic and BGES Fields of Honor, had just been released by the National Geographic Society. We were honored to be some of the first folks to purchase it and get Ed's autograph after the meeting.

I am so happy to report that we have reached our goal for membership this year, and the year is only half over.... that is outstanding! I encourage everyone to bring a friend to our meetings to learn about the Civil War and make new friends. You won't find a group of friendlier and more knowledgeable folks than the BRCWRT.

Speaking of meetings, our meeting schedule for the rest of 2010 will continue to be the second Thursday of the month at the Centreville Regional Library. The Fairfax County Board of Supervisors vote in late April on the 2010 budget did not affect our library meeting time and that is great news! The November 2010 meeting is the only meeting affected as the library is closed the second Thursday, November 11, for Veteran's Day. We will hold our meeting on the third Thursday, November 18th.

In closing, I want to encourage everyone to come out to our June 10th meeting and hear about the action in the Western Theater of the Civil War. We are going out West to hear about the Battle of Vicksburg, Mississippi. President Abraham Lincoln called the capture of Confederate Vicksburg the key to Union victory. By seizing the city, the Union gained control of the Mississippi River, cut the Confederacy in half and took its most important supply line. Please join us as Matt Atkinson, NPS Ranger, Gettysburg National Military Park, brings us this important lecture. You won't want to miss this one, and I'll see you then.

KNUDSEN SPEAKS ON GENERAL JAMES L. LONGSTREET

By Mark Trbovich

Confederate General James L Longstreet holds a very special place in our round table. We are blessed to have his great-grandson, former BRCWRT President and current member Dan Paterson, keep us up to date on all Longstreet ceremonies and events. Dan introduced me to Lt. Colonel Harold Knudsen this year who is author of the book General James Longstreet: the Confederacy's Most Modern General. He will be our speaker for the Thursday July 8th General Membership meeting. LTC Knudsen will explore the similarities of Longstreet's innovations and operations to certain aspects of war that became standard in the First and Second World Wars. Interpreting Longstreet through the comparison of his methods to twentieth century methods shows Longstreet was a very modern general.

LTC Knudsen's career thus far, spanning over twenty-three years in the U. S. Army, includes all career artillery, command and staff schools. His tactical expertise lies primarily in integrating fire support into the maneuver plan and the fire control/artillery computation required in cannon units. He spent nine years in Germany training military tactics for traditional high intensity conflict, as well as the current counter-insurgency training. A combat veteran of Desert Storm, he performed extensive artillery fire planning and execution in support of the U. S. breakthrough of the Iraqi line, followed up by the penetration into Iraq until the cease-fire. He has also served in Iraq and Kuwait during the current conflict as a Force Manager, fielding new equipment to our forces in Iraq. His years of staff work at the corps and army level, give him a complete understanding of army operations from the lowest to highest level. LTC Knudsen has a masters degree in liberal arts from Georgetown University. His book, James Longstreet: The Confederacy's Most Modern General, is based on his master's dissertation and draws heavily from 20th Century Army doctrine, training, and wartime experience. He is currently stationed in St Louis, Missouri. We are honored to have such a distinguished military officer and author as our July speaker. Please come out on July 8th to hear his excellent lecture on Gen. James L Longstreet.

MOSBY DOCUMENTARY BEING FILMED IN FAIRFAX COUNTY

Part VI

By Chuck Mauro

We were able to schedule Stevan Meserve to record his narration so now our post-production editor Bert Morgan is laying out the documentary end-to-end for the first time. This will allow us to see how long all the material is. We are planning on a ninety minute documentary; we will now see for the first time where we are. Secondly, this will allow us to make changes to the chronology to better tell the story if necessary.

Bert is laying out the documentary by showing the on-site introductions and then playing the studio narrative on a blank screen. This will give us the opportunity to decide which cutaways (location shots which Bert filmed while we were doing the introductions), and which historical pictures to use, and how long to use each. We'll have a little time code at the bottom of the screen so we'll know where to insert everything. Such high tech!

While Bert is working on this task, we are working on a map to accompany the documentary. The map will show the locations of each combat operation. Since we would like folks to be able to use their GPS, we have revisited many of our locations to ensure we have the correct coordinates. We will leave it up to our graphic artist Steve Wolfsberger on how best to portray all the information on the map itself.

We are also making progress on the soundtrack even though there is nothing for the composer, David Rubenstein, to look at yet. Dave attended a concert where two musicians were performing five Civil War songs. Ramona Matthews played the violin, and Lois Jones played the piano. Both are serious musicians and members of the Friday Morning Music Club, a large music society in the Washington, DC area. The Civil War era songs were arranged by Winifred Hyson. She has composed many vocal chamber works, choral pieces, and instrumental pieces and is a member of the Composers Group of the Friday Morning Music Club.

Dave asked if we would be interested in incorporating these songs into the soundtrack. After listening to the recording, we enthusiastically said yes. The addition of period music will give our documentary a real Ken Burns effect!

As I said last time, everything is coming together so we can start making final decisions about the product. Talk to you next time.

NOTE: Please see previous issues of the Stone Wall for Parts I to V beginning with the December 2009/January 2010 issue.

MOSBY ATTACKS ANNANDALE MARKER DEDICATION

by Janet Greentree

On Saturday, May 8, 2010, the Mason District of Fairfax County dedicated a new Virginia Historical sign at the corner of Championship Drive and Little River Turnpike (service drive), one block west of Hummer Road in Annandale. Participants and spectators began to arrive before 9:00 for the 9:30 unveiling. Unfortunately, the weather took a turn for the worse, and as soon as the sign was unveiled in a torrent of rain, everyone left for the Mason District Government Center to hear the speakers and enjoy refreshments.

The Bull Run Civil War Round Table's own Don Hakenson, wrote the words for the historical sign, and delivered one of his "low key" speeches – NOT! To say Don is enthusiastic is putting it mildly. He makes everything so interesting. Everyone should attend one of his tours, either the Mosby or Both Sides Tours, to see how he makes history come alive.

The marker reads as follows: "Shortly before 5 a.m. on Wednesday, 24 August 1864, Lt. Col. John Singleton Mosby with about 300 Confederate Rangers and two field artillery pieces opened fire from the west side of the Accotink Creek valley on a Union stockade located in Annandale. The bombardment lasted over one hour. Three times the demands to surrender were refused by Capt. Joseph Schneider, Co. C, 16th New York Cavalry in command of approximately 170 men. Mosby suddenly broke off the attack and withdrew west on Little River Turnpike, probably to avoid Federal reinforcements."

Speakers in addition to Don Hakenson included Mason District Supervisor Penny Gross; Fairfax County History Commission member Naomi Sokol Zeavin, Timothy Munson (great, great, great grandson of Timothy

MIKE BLOCK STARTS BRANDY STATION BLOG

By Mike Block

A blog about activities in and around Brandy Station has been a thought of mine for about a year. I started "Today at Brandy Station" this spring to a limited audience for a couple of reasons. The primary one was whether I would keep it up or not.

While I am a part of the Brandy Station Foundation, this will not be the official blog. Something may come later, but this isn't it. I will, when appropriate, write about the activities in and around Brandy Station today.

So far so good. Please do not look for an entry every day. I do not want this blog to be all consuming for me. My goal is four or five times a week. But, I have been known to overachieve....I had a family issue in April which shut me down for a couple weeks. That is why there is a large gap; it wasn't for lack of trying.

If you like it, please pass it on. Criticism is always good, but I do prefer constructive. Since I am new at blogging, I am sure there is a better way to present and display. Hopefully, the blog will mature and grow as I gain experience.

If you have suggestions or stories that you wish me to include, please do not hesitate to pass them on.

Fairfax County and Mason District are fortunate to have Penny Gross and Naomi Sokol Zeavin who are both interested in the history of Fairfax County.

Members of the BRCWRT who either participated or attended are as follows: Don Hakenson, Chris Godart (as General Richard S. Ewell), David Meisky (as William "Extra Billy" Smith), Dave Goetz, Bill Etue, Nancy Anwyll, Gwen Wyttenbach, Lynne Garvey-Hodge, and Janet Greentree.

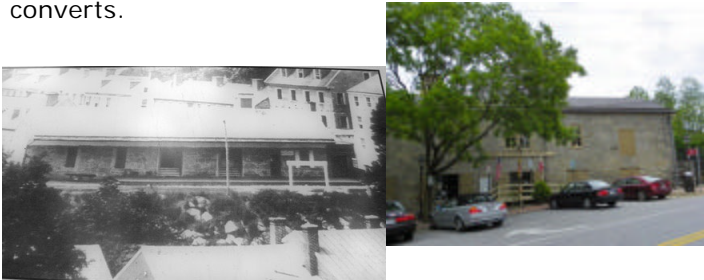

CIVIL WAR TRAVELS WITH MS. REBELLE— ELLICOTT CITY

By Janet Greentree

Ms. Rebelle and Yankee Nan (Nancy Anwyll) were off again on an adventure to Ellicott City, Maryland, to check out the Civil War aspects of the town and to see the B&O Railroad Ellicott City Station.

Ellicott City was started as a flour mill in 1772 by three Quaker brothers from Bucks County, Pennsylvania – John, Andrew, and Joseph Ellicott. The town was first known as Ellicott's Mills. The brothers revolutionized farming in the area by convincing the local farmers to plant wheat instead of tobacco. Charles Carroll, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, was one of their converts.

THEN AND NOW

In 1830 the town became the first terminus of the B&O Railroad outside of Baltimore. It is now the oldest surviving active railroad station in the country. The race between the Tom Thumb engine of Peter Cooper and a horse-drawn carriage took place in August, 1830 at Relay on a return trip from Ellicott's Mills. The horse won the race only because the engine had a broken drive belt. The station's upper level is on the level of the tracks. It was designed this way so that the engines could be worked on from below. Today the station is a museum with some very interesting exhibits and living historians telling its story.

During the Civil War the station was guarded by the Union Patapsco Guards. Supplies for the Union Army passed through the station day and night. In the aftermath of the battles of Antietam and Gettysburg, prisoners were held here so they could be transferred or paroled. On July 10, 1864 after the battle of Monocacy, General Lew Wallace retreated to the Ellicott's Mill Station. The town was filled with thousands of soldiers, the wounded, and prisoners on their retreat to Baltimore. The homes and churches were used as hospitals for the wounded. The basement of St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church was used as a hospital for both sides-Union and Confederate. The church sits on a hill overlooking the train station. The Early Stone Tavern across the street was used as a prisoner holding site.

After the Civil War, in 1869, General Robert E. Lee stayed at Linwood, the home of Major Washington Peter, a first cousin of Lee's wife, Mary Randolph Custis Lee. Linwood still stands today on the Church Road

The town is a fascinating combination of antique shops, many restaurants, and history. It's built on granite rocks which you can see right on the main street. There are several Civil War markers in the town.

Crossroads of Conflict:
Prince William County during the Civil War
A Historical Documentary Film

Prince William County, Virginia was the site of several famous Civil War battles, numerous skirmishes, and dozens of field hospitals as well as home to thousands of civilians who were affected by the war; their story has not been told...until now. Crossroads of Conflict examines the social and military aspects of the war through a combination of reenactment footage, period photographs, and modern interviews, all of which highlight the personal stories of those who lived and died during the war. A question-and-answer session with director/producer Jen Garrott will follow the 30 minute screening.

FREE! June 6th, 2 p.m. at the Old Manassas Courthouse
9248 Lee Avenue, Manassas, VA, 20110
For more information email jen.garrott@gmail.com

CROSSROADS OF CONFLICT FILM

The BRCWRT received this notice from Jen Garrott, a Fairfax County resident, graduate of Lake Braddock Secondary School, and graduate of the College of William and Mary.

For the past year Jen has been working on an undergraduate honors thesis project at William and Mary for which she produced a historical documentary film entitled "Crossroads of Conflict: Prince William County during the Civil War".

Her film is divided into three sections; each is centered around a local historic site and focuses on a different aspect of the war. The film examines the social and military aspects of the war through a combination of reenacted footage, period photographs, and modern interviews, all of which highlight the personal stories of those who lived and died during the war.

Jen is holding a free screening of this film on Sunday, June 6th, at 2:00 p.m. in the Old Manassas Courthouse. The film is about a half hour, and there will be a question and answer session directly afterward.

Hope you will be able to attend and show support for Jen's efforts.
